Memorial Services Conducted by Local Lodge of Odd Fellows.

REV. WIGHT DELIVERS SERMON

Consecrated Moonshine Outfit Seized Near Wesley Chapel Taken to Greensburg; Military Band to Play Sunday at Shady Grove Park.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTTSBURG, June 18.—Scottsboro Lodge No. 865, I. O. O. F., held its annual memorial service in the lodge rooms on Tuesday when a very appropriate program was carried out. In addition to the regular service, Rev. Paul S. Wight delivered an address on "The Price of Peace" and a quartet composed of members of the order and led by Elmer Morrow rendered music.

Silk Quilt Awarded Mrs. Miller.
Mrs. J. P. K. Miller of Chestnut street was awarded the silk quilt of honor by Mrs. William Bendiner, president of the Council of Jewish Women for the benefit of the council.

The Basis of Scottsboro Ice is Quality.
We like to say the word "quality" because we give studied attention to distilled water that goes into the manufacture of ice. We take pains in seeing that our ice is as pure and hygienic as human efforts can make it. When you buy "Scottsboro Ice" you can know the quality is there, as it is "pure" from every standpoint. For every detail that goes to make it so is studied and nothing is left undone to accomplish our desire. We believe our experience and careful efforts have produced ice of "real quality."

The Scottsboro Ice Company is a home industry, employing 18 men. The Scottsboro Ice Company is here 350 days in the year, not for the summer months alone. Advertisement—15-21

Taken to Greensburg.
The moonshine outfit, seized on the farm near Wesley Chapel two weeks ago, was yesterday morning moved by county authorities to Greensburg where it has been put away under lock and key.

Mrs. King's Funeral.
Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at the Owensdale United Brethren church for Mrs. Jefferson King, in charge of the pastor, Rev. D. W. Willard. Interment followed in the Scottsboro cemetery.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"THE CONCERT."—A Goldwyn picture, starting a host of prominent screen artists, is the feature attraction today. "The Concert" is from the stage production and the screen version is made from the American presentation and all the scenes and actors are American. "The Concert" is the tale of a great musician, a pianist, who is wooed and won temporarily by the wife of a young physician. At one of his concerts, Delphine Hart, irresponsible young wife of a physician, decides the Maestro is her "soul mate." She induces him to take her for a week-end trip to his mountain cabin. But Dr. Hart and Mrs. Martinot were warned in time and set out by automobile for the cabin with a plan to unmask the matrimonial impostor. Dr. Hart tells the maestro that everything dovetails nicely, that they have merely perfected an exchange of wives, to the satisfaction of all concerned. This assumed attitude shocks Martinot into a realization of his ridiculous position. The impressionable Delphine has also been disillusioned. Martinot is jealous at seeing his faithful wife apparently in love with another man, while Delphine suffers the same pangs at the thought of losing her husband. The musical genius falls on his knees and begs forgiveness of his wife, while Delphine buries her head in her husband's breast.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Priscilla Dean will be seen in "Reptilian," a big attraction.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE SAGE HEN."—An entertaining picture, starring Gladys Brooks, well, and the first episode of "The Purple Riders" with Joe Ryan in the leading role, are today's feature attractions. The action of "The Sage Hen" transpires in Arizona, from 1850 to 1900, when towns thrived only as long as there was gold in the hills and cattle on the open range. Accordingly, the picture is filled with the atmosphere of the plains, of the dance hall, the gold rush and the lawlessness of the old West. Because she lives alone with her baby son and took an oath to her confidence, a girl named Silver Creek as a thing one can and indecent. The "Sage Hen" they called her and drove her, with sticks and stones, from the village. Only Mrs. Rudd, who longed for a child of her own, showed kindness. She rode after Jane with her pet horse, which would return home when turned loose, as the food and a rifle. Jane lost the main road across the desert. Indians attacked and wounded her. To save her son she strapped him to the horse's back and headed the animal toward Silver Creek. George Sanson, riding by, found her unconscious and took her to the far distant town of Keno. He had a motherless baby daughter and, when she learned that the Rudds had adopted her son and been driven out of town, leaving no address, she became Sanson's housekeeper and gave his daughter a mother's care.

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE JAILBIRD."—A Paramount picture, starring Douglas MacLean, the well known juvenile star, and extra attractions, Miss Margaret Allan, a soloist of rare ability, Earl Williams and Frank Phillips, wizards of the steel guitars, and three of the youngest artists, the LaBelle twins, seven years of age, and Franco Gibson, four years old, said to be the youngest hula dancer in the world, appearing in person at each performance, provides an unusually attractive program today at this theatre. "The Jailbird" by Julian Josephson, produced under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Inc, is a comedy-drama of an "honest crook" and his strange adventures in a one-horse town, managed by one-track citizens and leading straight to the county calaboose, where "Shakespeare's Clancy" as MacLean is known in the picture, proves to the satisfaction of everyone that the straight and narrow path is the one safe and sure route to a sweet girl's heart. This is Mr. MacLean's first individual starring vehicle, he being no longer a co-star with Doris May, but a star in his own right. He has a highly entertaining role in this picture, that of a crook who is reformed through love.

THE ARCADE.

"MISS MANHATTAN."—"If a girl

is possessed of talent, a level head and the courage to endure many discouragements and heartaches, I would advise her by all means to adopt the stage as a career." This is the advice of Miss Stanley, one of the features with the "Miss Manhattan" musical comedy company sensation which comes to the Arcade theatre on Monday, June 20. "Certainly none of the professions offer a better or more attractive means of earning a livelihood than the stage. The opportunity for advancement is wider today than ever before. This opinion is born out by the current commercialization of the theatre. This can do but little harm to the player. And as the producers are ever on the alert for new and promising material, the fact that the theatre is commercialized makes the player more valuable. And if the actor is blessed with versatility this condition only enhances his opportunity. Acting, like any other business, involves a question of ability, whether a player is a comedian or a tragedian if the 'stuff' is in you there can never be any doubt of your ultimately attaining success. The art of acting of course differs from a commercial pursuit; it does not naturally follow that one would succeed as an actress by reason of a success in business life. But there are many instances of girls, who, proclaimed totally unfit for the stage, did 'get there' ultimately by reason of incredible courage and relentlessly hard work. They simply had 'it' in them, that's all.

MOST TALK NOT CONFESSIVE

Assertion Made That Anecdotes Compose by Far the Greatest Part of Conversations of Americans.

For hours a group of men will talk, and all problems fall like duds on a rifle range before their well-aimed epigrams. It may be a brilliant session, but we cannot forbear thinking that not many serious thoughts are expressed with fervor, that few honest emotions have adequate utterance. A gathering often is devoted to anecdotes, quips and the recital of jokes, like the biblical stories, under the conversational pot.

Of course, much conversation is necessarily anecdotal, but two travelers who meet in the smoker of a train crossing our American prairie do not tell anecdotes merely, says the New York Sun. There the anecdotes take on more meat and grow in length—they become tales. Again, however, learned we are, we forget our politeness when we talk in a smoker. Yet over a meal among those who know and will meet again, the sleight of our impulse to modesty and sincere self-expression and launch forth in all our drab erudition or also we sparkle in anecdote and say nothing to the point; for, ting that the best jests, aside the point, soon point-lose.

In short, there is not always enough confession in conversation between Americans. In France and in Latin America the art of conversation has become an art of confession, of the confession, indeed, of one's faults, foibles and fancies. As for the fact that no one is so scrupulous, perhaps, as to insist listening to our personal histories, or what is more to the point, the emotional accompaniment of these histories.

History of Potato.

"The potato entered this country," Dr. Lauffer said, in an address before the American Association for the Advancement of Science, "but as furnished by De Candolle, through an alleged band of Spanish adventurers, but in a perfectly respectable manner from Bermuda, where it had been introduced some years previously from England. It is a plant of fortune that the potato, originally a denizen of Chile and Peru, appears as a naturalized Englishman in the United States. The potato had arrived in England about 1560, or a little later."

Keeping the Record Straight.

"You say you didn't write burning letters," thundered the lawyer for the plaintiff in a divorce suit, "but here is the proof in black and white." "Black and blue," interrupted the judge, "if you are referring to the letters in your hand." "Oh?" "The stationery is blue and the ink, assume, is black,"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

LITTLE FOLKS CLOTHES

Touches of hand work on little frocks give an air of smartness to even the simplest garment. Green barred dainty, picked on the edges of the quaint tab collar and cuffs and on the pockets is enlivened with orange colored flowers done in silk. The romper is a combination of white lawn and blue linen with applique of fruit in pink and yellow linen.

CARBONATED ICE CREAM

Invention of Noted Scientist, Prof. W. Paul Heath—receiving Nation-Wide Recognition because of its Purity and Excellence of Quality.

Your Tongue Can Tell!

Hagan's Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream is Super-Pure and Better!

THE minute you taste our Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream you will distinguish a difference. Its new, fresher, cleaner, more flavorful taste will make you exclaim: "Oh, how delicious!"

You'll note a smoother texture, a keener fragrance, a more delicate type of ice cream than you ever tasted before. Carbonating does this and adds richness to the pure, selected ingredients used in manufacturing it.

Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream is Better

Not only is our Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream nicer, but it is a better ice cream than we have ever been able to make before.

This is due to the fact that it is frozen in a pure, sterile, germ-proof atmosphere.

If you look at ice cream through a microscope you'll note an infinity of tiny bubbles, or cells, full of atmosphere all through the texture. This is what makes ice cream easy to eat; otherwise it would freeze hard like ice. In ordinary ice cream these bubbles are full of common air. In other words ice cream manufacturers may faithfully guard the absolute purity of all the elements that go into ice cream, then they add to it one element—air—which is never perfectly pure. For sanitation we substitute carbonation, using nature's purest atmosphere.

Best and Safest For the Children

Children are the greatest consumers of ice cream. Let them eat all they want, because ice cream is the finest food in the world for growing young bodies. Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream is always the PUREST and BEST.

Ice cream is good for growing youngsters because it is made from the rich cream of milk which contains all the precious vitamins—the growth and health element of food.

When you buy ice cream, whether you buy a dish at a soda fountain or to bulk for home use, insist that your dealer gives you our Heathmade Carbonated Ice Cream. He can get it for you if he hasn't it. Ask for

Troubled for Ten Years.

If you suffer pains and aches during the day and sleep-disturbing bladder weakness by night, feel tired, nervous and run down, the kidneys and bladder need to be restored to healthy and regular action. J. T. O'Brien, R. F. D. No. 1, Lucasville, O., writes: "I had kidney trouble for 10 years. I tried many remedies but they never did me any good. I took Foley Kidney Pills, and they helped me so much that I am well now. Don't delay. Sold everywhere.—Advertisement."

PUBLICATION JUSTIFIED

The chief objection urged against the publication of a list of alleged draft deserters, that it would bring undeserved odium upon men who volunteered, is being met in an effective way that it has lost all its weight. Indeed, it at any time merited serious consideration.

The publication of the list is serving the very desirable and necessary purpose of making corrections in the military records of some of the men whose names appear on the list. Being given publicity by the War Department. When it has been established that a name has been listed in error, and the fact established by proper proof, the department immediately takes steps to remove the name from the published list of draft deserters.

The method pursued is illustrated by the case of Robert Andrew Davis, a registrant of the local board for District No. 1, Harrisburg, who volunteered, entered the military service, obtained a commission and was killed in action in France. He failed to notify the board of his enlistment and being without information as to his service the board reported him a draft deserter. When these facts were brought to the attention of the War Department an order was issued directing the removal of the man's name from the deserter list. The newspapers, postmasters and other agencies through which the lists are being made public were immediately apprised of the action of the War Department and the request made that identical publicity be given the information as was given the original list on which his name was published.

Except for the publication of the name of this man as an alleged deserter the charge resting against him would have remained of record in the War Department's archives, notwithstanding his patriotic service and supreme sacrifice for his country. Had not this error been discovered until after years it would probably be very difficult, if not impossible, to have it rectified.

This illustration is but one of a number but it is sufficient to show the wisdom and justice of publishing the lists of alleged draft deserters. If they serve no other purpose than to correct the records of even a few brilliant young men the action will be more than justified.

A FUTILE BAREFOOT HOPE.

The hectic activity of the so-called Women's Voters League in the campaign last fall to encourage the partisan purpose of boosting the cause of Democracy in Fayette, will be recalled by an effort now being made by the New Freedom leaders to rally the badly shattered remnants of their forces which went down to ignominious defeat seven short months ago.

The method now being employed is explained by "Ex-Committeemen" of the well posted political writer of the Harrisburg Telegraph, who says:

"The Pittsburgh-Mechanic machine analyzes that a voter has not to do a lot of explaining to show anybody why he is a Democrat, so sixteen lessons, 'guaranteed to make any woman able to explain why she is a Democrat,' have been made features of the Democratic women's program, sponsored by Mrs. Clarence Renshaw, state chairman of that party.

According to Mrs. M. A. O'Connell, chairman of the fourth Congressional district, who has been teaching the women in that section the 'sixteen lessons' are embodied in the history of the party. Though Mrs. O'Connell is one of the foremost women Democrats enthusiastically to deny the statement that Mrs. Renshaw is the only live Democrat seen in Philadelphia for 25 years, she nevertheless fell in line with all of Mrs. O'Connell's suggestions, crediting her with every plan of organization and education.

The sixteen lessons, which are to be 'distributed' among the willing, and left to take hold or not, may be, instead they will be put into the hands of 'political educational chairmen' in each election division. It is supposed there is at least one woman in each division who 'knows why she is a Democrat,' and can readily master the lessons.

This scheme shows that the barefooters still lack discretion and a realistic sense of the utter hopelessness of fooling anybody but themselves. There was a possibility that they would delude a few confiding Republican women last fall, under the guise of instructing them how to cast their first ballot, but the mereless exposure of their duplicitous scheming plans, but to enable any women of their detestable party, either male or female, to exploit at this time why they should ever again vote for the Democrat, is so futile a hope that the power of 'political educational chairmen' is fated to become one of empty honor.

THE NEWSPAPER MAN.

Bit of a priest and a bit of a sailor,
Bit of a doctor and bit of a tailor,
Bit of a judge, for his work is corrective;
Cheering the living and soothing the dying,
Risking all things, even dare-devil flying,
True to his paper and true to his clan—
Just look him over, the newspaper man.

Sleep! There are times that he'll do with a little,
Work will be nerves and his temper are brittle;
Fire cannot daunt him, nor long hours disturb him,
Gold cannot buy him and threaten can't curb him;
Highbrows or lowbrows, your own speech he'll hunt you, and threaten can't curb him;
Talk as you will to him, he'll understand you;
He'll go wherever another man can,
That is the way of the newspaper man.

Surgeon, if urgent the need be, you'll find him,
Ready to help, nor will business blind him,
Hells the ether and never once fails,
Say the last rites like a priest at the altar,
Gentle and kind with the weak and the weary,
Which is proved now and then when his stern eyes grow teary,
Facing all things in life's curious plan,
That is the way of the newspaper man.

One night a week may be rest from his
One night at home to be father and neighbor,
Just a few hours for his own bit of leisure,
All the rest's giving at other men's pleasure,
All the rest's toiling, and yet he receives,
All the world is, and that men do he voices,
Who know a calling more glorious than
The day-by-day work of the newspaper man?

THE PEOPLE.

Living with the people, the good, the brave,
Glad to pass the time of day with all who come along,
Lord, it's good to meet your children as they trudge life's thoroughfare,
And learn the hopes their cherish and the dreams they see out there.

Living with the people here upon the kindly earth
And finding in the strangest parts the messengers of truth,
For many a shining day of life the banner by our aid,
And every man is worth your while if but you know him well.

Living with the people, the rich, the poor, the wise,
The same breeze blowing over them, the same sun in their eyes,
And this you learn from high and low, throughout life's stretch of years,
We're brothers in the joys we take and brothers in our tears.

I'm sorry for the haughty man who holds his head in air
And passes by in cold disdain the garbs of toil and care,
For though he may be rich and great his lonely life must live,
He misses all the glorious joys his fellows have to give.

Oh, walk with them and talk with them and hear the things they tell,
The passer-by would be your friends if but you knew them well,
The children of the Lord are they, and as they come and go,
There is not one among them all that is not good to know.

NEWS OF THE DAY AT MT. PLEASANT BRIEFLY RELATED

Explosion of Paint Causes Fire at Mount Pleasant Institute.

FIREMEN PREVENT GREAT LOSS

No Trace Found of Missing Dorothy Reese, Believed to Have Been Kidnaped Wednesday; Found Coming in Liberally For Fourth Celebration.

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, June 13.—An explosion of paint, with which Ferner Burkholder was experimenting at the old laboratory of the Mount Pleasant Institute, caused a fire Friday afternoon which damaged the place to the extent of $50. Efficient work by the fire department prevented heavier loss, in the opinion of Dr. B. M. Lorr, member of the board of directors of the institution.

Dorothy Reese Not Found.
Neither the officers nor Mr. and Mrs. George Reese have been able to get any clues as to the whereabouts of Dorothy Reese, nine years old, adopted daughter of the Reese family, who disappeared Wednesday morning and is believed to have been kidnaped.

Fourth Committee Meeting.
A general meeting of the Fourth of July Finance Committee will be held Tuesday evening. Members of the committee are said to have met with success in the canvass for funds.

The Church of God.
Services at the Church of God Sunday will be preaching, 10:30 and 7:30; morning subject, "To Be Accounted for Service;" evening, "A Message Important;" Sunday school and Christian Endeavor as usual.

Drive Next Week For Tablet Fund

Citizens of Dunbar township No. 2 and No. 8 and Franklin township No. 1 will open a campaign Monday to raise a fund to erect a tablet to the memory of the young men of the community who served in the World War.

The drive will last a week—Advertisement—13-11.

Ohioops!

ORIOPTLE, June 13.—Tarry Tissue of Deer Run spent Thursday in town on business.

Three skating races were held at the Renter Park skating rink Wednesday evening and prizes were given to the winners. The lady racers were Viola Stuck and Rosa Pape, the former the winner. Elmer Wolfe and Harry Wolfe won the men's prize. Another night for races will be given soon.

Mrs. T. M. Mitchell spent Thursday calling on friends in Connelville. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuck returned home Wednesday from a trip to Niagara Falls.

Miss Dils of Belle Vernon is the guest of Miss Adeline Potter.

Miss Eliza Shaw returned yesterday from a visit at Connelville.

Miss Davis is visiting relatives at Youngstown, O., for a few days.

Dickerson Run.

DICKERSON RUN, June 13.—J. N. Colburn, well-known, retired Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad man, left today for a visit of several months in California.

D. J. Hughes of Pittsburgh was calling on friends here Thursday.

Mrs. John Beatty and daughter and Mrs. Griff Condit of South Connelville attended the funeral of Mrs. Roy Morrison of Dawson yesterday.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Galley yesterday, a baby boy. Before marriage Mrs. Galley was Miss Opal Gilmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gilmore of this place.

B. P. Snyder of Perryopolis spent the day yesterday visiting his daughter, Mrs. Henry Hunker.

A Personal Misfortune.

"Just because your candidate was defeated, you don't think the country is going to pot, do you?"

"No," said the melancholy citizen, "I don't. But since my candidate prompted me a job, if he got elected, I don't see what's to prevent me from going to pot."

SOME SMILES

Absolutely!

"Hereafter, there will be absolutely no smoking in barracks at any time," believed a captain in British arsenal, New Jersey, after a fire caused by a forgotten butt had been quelled. "Absolutely! Not at any time!"

Then he paused and added as an afterthought in a louder bellow even than before:

"Especially at night!"—American Legion Weekly.

The Grand Essential.

"What is the plot of your new play?"

"We haven't begun to think about that," replied the producing manager.

"But you say you have a sure winner."

"We certainly have. We thought up a ragsie title that'll bring the people in as soon as they read the billboards."

Spelling the Show.

"I understand the musician's performance was broken up in disorder."

"Yes. While he was lecturing Princess Oompa, a careless stage hand left a door open and exposed her to a strong draft."

Well!

"She began to rave, and a rhyal patron in the gallery shouted: 'Look-a-By, baby!'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

An Ingenious Thing.

Mrs. Mason, who had just had installed an electric cooking stove, asked her maid, Nora, what she thought of it.

"To me, mum," said Nora, "it seems like a great invention. When you and Mr. Mason were away for over Sunday, mum, I burned it all the time, mum, and there seems to be plenty of electricity still left!"

Light-Headed.

The lights were very low, and stillness reigned in the back parlor. Suddenly a female voice was heard:

"Freddie, dear!"

"Yes, angel."

"Does my head seem heavy on your shoulder?"

"No, darling. It is very light, indeed!"

AN IMPOSSIBLE UNDERTAKING.

"I hear that you have been laid up with nervous prostration. What's the cause, overwork or worry?"

"Both. I tried to take a photograph taken that suited my wife."

Best Way Out.

When Bracer hints that he is short and starts the same old song, Don't want to hear how short he is, but just remark, "So long!"

Place to Park Cars.

Styles—see that pawnbroker on the next block has started an automobile department in connection with his business.

Miles—I understand so. Do you expect to park your car there soon?"

Saw His Mouth.

Belle—Did his face express any emotion while I was singing?

Bentley—Really, I don't know.

"Why, couldn't you see his face from where you sat?"

"No; he was yawning."

Inevitable Leisure.

"Nobody ought to enjoy the bread of idleness."

"And yet you can't expect a man who sells bread these days to avoid getting rich enough to quit work."

This Is Mean.

"Why don't married men kiss their wives often?"

"Edmund, I have noticed, however, that the more in the trap seems to

A Touch of Authority.

"You claim to be an optimist?"

"I do," replied the photographer.

"When I tell a man to smile, he invariably does his best."

A Cynical Woman.

Mrs. Green—My husband seems to enjoy life thoroughly.

Mrs. Wye—What a lot of bad habits he must have.—Boston Transcript.

Going Alone.

"There's one advantage golf has over baseball." "What's that?" "You don't have to take your wife to see it played."

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH.

Mike McGonigal and Jerry McGuffin, nationally unknown, had been business partners in the rock-dusting gang.

Owing to a premature explosion, Jerry got blasted with the rock, and Mike, in a quandary, wired for instructions. He was told to ship the remains to the nearest undertaker.

Mike scrupulously gathered up all McGuffin's belongings, even to the broken clay pipe, and sent them to the undertaker with this telegram:

"As per order of the boss, I ship you the remains of Jerry McGuffin. But what will I do with the body?"

A Memory of Youth.

"Your little party last night was splendid," said an intimate friend of Mr. Wadleigh.

"Thank you," replied Mr. Wadleigh. "I don't mind telling you as an old acquaintance that it cost me in the neighborhood of $10,000, and I didn't enjoy myself half as much as I did the first time I ever spent a whole dollar on a girl."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Egotist.

"I understand you have barred Three-Finger Sam from the poker game."

"Yes," answered Cactus Joe, "for his exotism."

"How do you mean, 'exotism'?"

"He got an idea he had some kind of a divine right that prevented anybody from ever holding four aces except himself."

IT CAN BE DONE.

"A man should never talk about what he does not understand."

"Well, sometimes he can't get away with it, if he's sure his audience doesn't understand it either."

Pleasant Neighbors.

When the Bernapighs began they have quite a host. For he never gives in. And she never gives out.

Relative Rank.

"And do you think I could prove a satisfactory mate with whom to sail the sea of life?" he asked roily.

"Oh, so-so," the maiden responded coolly. "You'd do pretty well as a mate, I guess, if you clearly understood who was captain."—Country Gentleman.

One Way of Argument.

Gibson—I must have convinced Partridge.

Benjamin—Why do you think that?

"Why he held opposite views to me at first, but later he readily agreed with me."

"Perhaps you only tired him."

No Blues There.

"Pa, if we were living in the center of the earth, we'd have lots of fun, wouldn't we?"

"Why should we, my son?"

"Cause my geography says everything there loses its gravity."—Boston Transcript.

THE ONLY WAY.

"What are you doing?" said the manager of the hotel. "I'm going to appreciate myself and die on my hands."

"What's the matter with you?"

"You've gone and blown out the gas."

"Nothing of the kind. I am entitled to the use of this gas, ain't I?"

"Yes."

"Well, I can't get any satisfaction by lighting it. The only way I can get my money's worth is to sit here and smell it!"

IN BED EIGHT MONTHS

Cause—Change of Life. How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Got Me Up

Afton, Tenn.—"I want other suffering women to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done for me. During the Change of Life I was in bed for eight months and had two good doctors treating me but they did me no good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound, which I did and in a short time I felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will induce some one to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter."

—Mrs. A. KELLEN, Afton, Tennessee.

Women from forty-five to fifty years of age should take warning from such symptoms as heat flashes, palpitation of the heart, smothering or fainting spells, or spots before the eyes, and prepare their system for the coming natural change by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has helped many, many women through this trying period, just as it did Mrs. Kellen.

WRITER'S RIGHT TO BORROW

Highest Authority for the Practice in the Works of the World's Greatest.

One reads for thought and for quotation not less; if he find his thoughts more fully conceived and ready to express, let him quote without hesitation or apology. He has the highest authority for the practice. How rich is Plutarch's page, Montaigne's, Bacon's! And what they borrow is of a piece with their own text, giving it added strength and grace. I know the feeling of our time affects the habit of borrowing. But who is rich enough to refuse, or plead honorably for his exclusiveness? Somehow the printer happens to forget his quotation marks, and the credit of originality goes to the writer none the less. The plea is that quotation often implies similarity and bad taste. Then Shakespeare and his contemporaries were wanting in wit and fine rhetoric. Hear how Montaigne justifies his practice:

"Let nobody insist upon the matter. I write but my method in writing. Let them observe in what I borrow. If I have known how to choose what is proper to raise or relieve invention, which is always my own; for I make others say for me what, either for want of language or want of sense, I cannot myself well express. I do not borrow in my borrowings, I do not have it designed to raise their estimate by their number. I had made twice as many."—Bacon's Essays.

Some Girl.

"How about Miss Pencher?"

"In what particular?"

"Is she pretty?"

"She's so easy on the eyes that a 100 per cent fan wouldn't mind taking her to the bull park and exhibiting every play that was made."

Chamberlain's Cough and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of cold and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The Chamberlain's Cough and Diarrhoea Remedy is the prompt cure which has effected have made it a staple article of trade.—Advertisement.

Good for Women, too.

Poley Cathartic Tablets have long been a favorite physic with men. Women suffer as much as men do from indigestion and constipation, and they also require a scientific remedy to keep the stomach and bowels regular. Mrs. Geo. Powers, 84 Wintthrop avenue, Revere Mass., writes: "I have taken Poley Cathartic Tablets and I recommend them to everyone. They banish biliousness, headache, bloating. Sold everywhere."—Advertisement.

pressed the Triumph Pills. Safe and dependable in all proper cases. Not sold at drug stores. Do not experiment with cheap, low-grade, disappointing pills. Write for "The Triumph Pills" and particulars, it's free. Address: National Medical Institute, Milwaukee, Wis.

YOUNG CARMEN SIGNED TO MEET EDDIE CARVER HERE, AT SLAVISH HALL JULY 4

With his usual method of getting quick results, Duke Barry, who was appointed matchmaker of the layette, Atlanta club, a little more than 21 hours ago, has arranged the star attraction for the show that will take place at Slavish hall on the night of July 4.

With a match only half way arranged, the manager, Duke Barry, has arranged a little light weight of Pittsburgh to meet a good opponent, Barry lost no time in signing Young Carmen of Chicago to meet Carver. The selection of Carmen and setting the date for the fight, is the intention of the matchmaker, the first colored boy was one of the quickest matches ever arranged for the layette club. Not only were the details of the match, between these two famous boxers, readily finished, but the match itself is one that would do any of the larger clubs on the this big district proud.

This will be the first appearance of the Charleston youth before a local gathering, but Carmen comes here with a record that many fighters envy. During his winter, Carmen did considerable boxing on the Pacific coast, defeating many of the native sons, and soon built up a reputation that cost him many bouts, as he was known as one of the best aggressive fighters, that ever ambled coastward, and many of the best fighters became Carmen's slugs. Carmen shortly after returned to his home town, where he was sent for by the New Orleans and others, in which, he also defeated the best that could be signed to meet him. At the last show held in Pittsburgh that of the Y. M. C. at Duquesne Garden, Carmen upset the dope by knocking out Eddie

Barry of the Smoky City. This will give the fans an idea of the ability of the Charleston subject. Carmen's opponent, Eddie Carver, is a local favorite, due entirely to his excellent boxing. The colored youth is an exceptionally fast fighter, who keeps his opponent busy, by a second hand style, that Carver himself uses. The bout, which is one of the best ever arranged to take place in this city, and will be a decided draw, one of the largest crowds that ever entered Slavish hall to see a boxing match.

It is the intention of the matchmaker, to the sound effect, and on the night of the fight, the show at Slavish hall will be the most critical fight followed.

This town will be flooded with men looking on July 4, as Charmer always turns out strong for his native battles.

Young Pinchot, the fast battler of Carmichael, will probably be Carmichael's chief second, as the two boys are inseparable when both are at home.

Pitcher James Winters

Perhaps a year in the minors will steady him and teach him to get the most out of his natural skill in manipulating a ball. Fortunately, Winters has been sent to a club managed by a man who knows his capabilities and his faults thoroughly. Larry Doyle will know how to handle the temperamental Winters and will aid him more than any other minor league leader could.

Probably every young pitcher has wished that he could throw both right and left handed, but the instances are extremely rare. Turner Barber of the Cardinals, however, when he was playing with Union University in Jackson, Tenn., and later when he was with an independent ball team.

DEMPSEY'S FAVORITE "RABBIT PUNCH" REGARDED AS ILLEGAL

Is Jack Dempsey a foul fighter? Some say the heavyweight champion is getting away with murder when it comes to the intricacies of the game, writes Harry Hochstetler in the Chicago Post.

These certain "some" contend that Jack Dempsey is a great champion, can hit like a pin, and all that, but he would not be half as effective if referees would bar the rabbit punch. There are many who say that if Dempsey continues to use the rabbit punch he will wake up to find he has been disqualified out of the heavy weight champion ship of the world.

Infraction of Rules. There is no doubt that the rabbit blow is an infraction of the Marquis of Queensberry rules. Although many have used it with great effect for a long while, he scored quite a number of knockouts before his opponents got wise to his trick. Saylor was disqualified for using the rabbit punch in Australia.

For the benefit of those who don't know what the rabbit punch is, we offer the following lucid explanation: "A sock back of the neck with the fist and forearm. Dempsey gets his opponent into position for the rabbit punch with a left hook to the body. This doubles up the victim and then Dempsey steps to the right and lets go back of the neck."

To our own knowledge Jack Dempsey pulled this same stunt against Homer Smith at Racine one night when he won in the first round. He also repeated in his first battle with Bill Brennan at Milwaukee in the second round when he pulled Bill forward and down, at the same time twisting Bill's ankle.

Dempsey doesn't necessarily have to win all his battles with the rabbit punch. Against Billy "Mike" the champion just let go blows in any old direction and they found their mark. Again when Dempsey won the heavy weight title from Jess Willard at Toledo, Ill., Jess was so tall and big that Dempsey never had a chance to use the rabbit blow.

The proposed stadium will comprise twenty acres of ground at Cambridge. The University of Pennsylvania and Harvard have of First and Second years a 220 yard straightaway and they have always alternated in holding the intercollegiate track and field title race.

"CAP" STUBBS.

SURE HE WOULD!

By EDWINA.

Justice accomplished her ends and then with comic displays of violence in the prairie capital. One night Abe Lincoln and certain of his friends captured a shoe-maker who had beaten his wife and held him at the village pump while the aggrieved woman gave him a sound thrashing. So this phase of imperialism was cured in Springfield by "the old man dog," as Lincoln put it.

One evening, while E. D. Baker was speaking in the crowded village courtroom above Lincoln's office and was rudely interrupted and in danger of assault, the long legs of Honest Abe suddenly appeared through a scuffle hole in the ceiling above the platform. He leaped upon it and, holding a water picher defied any one to interfere with the right of free speech in a worthy cause.

So it will be seen that there were useful moments in these sundry vicissitudes of the principles of Democracy in the prairie capital.

About this time Miss Mary Todd, the daughter of a Kentucky banker, arrived in Springfield to visit her sister, Mrs. Milton W. Edwards. She was a fashionably dressed, good-looking girl of blue-gray eyes and dark hair.

"Well, Mary, haven't you found the fortunate young man yet?" Mr. Edwards playfully asked the day of her coming.

"You know, my husband is going to be President of the United States and I hoped that I would find him in Springfield," Mary answered in a like vein.

"That's great fishing here," said Mr. Edwards. "I know the very man you are looking for. He has come up from the ranks and is now the most popular member of the legislature. He can make a stirring speech and they say he is going to be the President of the United States. He's wise and witty and straight as a string, but a rough diamond—like awkward and honest. You're just the girl to take him in hand and give him a little polish and push him along. His name is Abraham Lincoln."

Speed knew the Todds. When he called upon Mary she asked about Mr. Lincoln and said she would like to meet him.

"She's just the girl for you, Abe," Speed said to him that evening. "She is bright and well educated and her family has influence. She could be a great help to you."

This interested the member from Sangamon county, who was indeed eager to get along. The companionship of a refined young lady was the very thing he needed.

"Let's go over and pay our respects to her," Speed suggested. They went, Lincoln being carefully dressed in his first suit of black clothes. Miss Todd was a bright, vivacious girl of middle stature, twenty-two years old. She was fashionably dressed and carried her head proudly—a smart-looking, witty, well spoken girl, but not especially handsome. Honest Abe was deeply impressed by her talk and the manners and general comeliness. He felt her grace and charm and spoke of it with enthusiasm. But to him and to her there seemed to be an impassable gulf between them. She changed her mind about that, however, when she heard him speak and felt the power of his personality and saw his face lighted by the candle of his spirit. It was a handsome face in those moments of high elation.

Deeply impressed by her talk and fine manners.

Hardship and malice had lined and shadowed his face. The shadows of loneliness and sorrow were in its sculpturing. But when his eyes glowed with passion one saw not the rough mask which the life of the pioneer had given him. His face took on a noble and impressive beauty. To quote his own words to the boy, Josiah Taylor, his character was speaking as well as his lips. Mary had the insight to recognize his power. She felt the strength of his spirit. She agreed with her friends that there was a sense of great promise. She felt the need of him.

One of the women who loved beauty and respected women as he did, the grace and refinement of this young lady had a singular appeal, coupled, as it was, with the urge of his strong, masculine nature. It was a revelation. He was like a young poet going out into the open and seeing for the first time the mysterious beauty of the mountains or the exquisite, delicate, thin curve of the new moon in spring. He began to seek and study refinement of thought, of manner, of dress, of expression. He knew that he needed Mary, but had the feeling that she was not for him.

A woman who lived near the Edwards' house had a small, hairy poodle dog. One day, as Abe and Mary were walking along the street, they met this woman, who asked if they had seen her dog.

"I wouldn't wonder if some one down the street had got him tied to the end of a pole and using him to swab off his windows," said Abe Lincoln with a good-natured laugh. "I'll try to find him for you."

Mary enjoyed fun and this and like sallies of the young legislator added a certain zest to their friendship. Women are like children in their love of humor.

The distinctive Douglas saw in Miss Todd an asset of much value and his attentions began to be assiduous. Mary was indifferent to his lofty manner and sonorous vocabulary. Abe Lincoln liked her better for that.

She encouraged the visits of the latter and invited his confidence. The fact fitted him with a great joy. They went about together. In the Edwards' parlor he modestly told her of his work and his life plan. She differed with him on certain subjects which were unfortunately fundamental. He did not love her as he had loved Ann. But her personality pleased and fascinated the young legislator. One evening under the spell of it he asked her to be his wife. She consented. Then he began to think it over.

It was like Lincoln in his relations with women to get the cart before the horse, so to speak. The points upon which they disagreed came up for consideration. She could not think as he did on the subject of slavery and the kindred one of state rights. His opinions were not like hers. They grew naturally of his history and character. He could be kind and gentle in his way. But, mainly, his manners would have to be like the rugged limbs of the oak. The grace and elegance of the water-willow and the white birch were not for him. It saddened him to conclude that he would have to be for a long time just what he was—crude, awkward, unlearned in the graces and amenities of cultivated people. He rightly judged that his crudeness would be a constant source of irritation to the proud Mary. As their acquaintance progressed the trust of his conviction grew more apparent. This, however, did not so much concern him as her lack of sympathy with some of his deepest motives. He decided that, after all, he did not love her and that to marry her would be committing a grave wrong.

Some of the important steps of his life followed. His conscience gave him no rest. He knew not what to do. He wrote a letter to Miss Todd in which he reviewed the history of his thinking on the subject of their marriage and frankly but tenderly stated his conviction that it would imperil her happiness to marry him. Before sending it he submitted the letter to his friend Speed.

The latter read it over and looked very grave. "What do you think of it?" Lincoln asked.

"I would never send a letter like that to a lady," Speed answered. "If you feel as you say, go and tell her so, but don't put it in a letter."

Lincoln went to see her that evening and returned to his friend in a more cheerful mood.

"Did you tell her?" Speed asked.

"Yes, I did," he answered.

"What happened?"

"She burst out crying and I threw my arms around her and kissed her and that settled it. We are going to be married."

What an illustration of the humanity and civility of Honest Abe, was in the proceeding!

"I'm sure you'll get along all right together," said Speed. "Your spirit is jealous of any one likely to get in its way. But she won't. She'll fall in line and do what she can to help you."

Now, a little before this time, Henry Brimstead and other creditors of Davis had gone to Chicago in the matter of the satisfaction of their judgment against him. Henry had driven a wagon across the prairies and, returning, had brought him and her mother to his home and then to Springfield. It was when they were there that Harry had come down to Chicago out of the woods in a condition of health which had alarmed his physician. The latter had put him on a steamboat and sent him East. He was bound for the mountains East in northern New York.

Elm and her mother returned to Chicago on the stage, the former to take a place in the store as the representative of Samson's interest.

Harry was three years in the wilderness trying to regain his health. Success came to him in the last year of his banishment.

Toward the end of it he received a letter from Mr. Lincoln. It was written soon after that curious climax in the courting of Mary Todd. In this

"I am seeing my last term in the legislature. I learn that you are in better health and I hope that you will have the strength and inclination to return soon and to a candidate for my seat in the house. Samson will not do it, being so busy with large affairs. You are young. You have won distinction in the service of your country. You have studied the problems of the country and the state. Samson and Baker and Logan and Brown have agreed with me that you are the man for the place."

"As for myself, I am going to be married in a year or so. I shall have to give all my time to the practice of the law. I am now in partnership with Stephen T. Logan and am slowly clearing my conscience of debt. I have done what I could for the state and for Sangamon county. It hasn't been much. I want you to take up the burden, if you can, and I get free of my debts, or leave by and by I may jump into the ring again."

Harry was glad to obey the summons. Soon after the arrival of Mr. Lincoln's letter his doctor gave the young man what he called "an honorable discharge." The magic of youth and its courage and of good air brought a change of which the able doctor had had little hope in the beginning.

In his travels through the great forest Harry had met David Parish and Stephen Van Rensselaer at whose homes on the shore of the St. Lawrence he had spent many a happy summer day. Three years had passed since that fateful morning on the prairie. Through the winters he had lived in a comfortable hunter's camp on the shore of Lake Placid. Summers he had wandered with a guide and canoe through the lakes and rivers of the wilderness hunting and fishing and reading the law books which he had borrowed from Judge Fine of Ogdensburg. Each summer he worked down the Oswegatchie to that point for a visit with his new friend. The history of every week had been written to him and her letters had reached him at the points where he was wont to rest in his travels. The letters had not lost their ardor. The rays were the love "that hopes and endures and is patient."

On a day in June 1841, he boarded a steamer at Ogdensburg on his way to Chicago. He arrived in the evening and found himself at the house of Elm and her mother—a capacious and well-furnished house at Dearborn street. Elm was then a little over twenty-five years old. A letter from John Wentworth says that she was "an exquisite bit of womanhood" and "the girl was still very handsome." The store had doubled in size under her management and with the help of the capital of Samson and Sarah Taylor. The epidemic had seized her toward the last of her nursing and left the marks of its scourge upon her. It had marred her beauty, but Samson writes, "the girl was still very handsome. She was kind of acquiescent to meet Harry for fear of what he'd think of those little marks on her face, but I told her not to worry."

"You are the sweetest and loveliest looking creature that I ever saw in my life," said Harry after he had held her in his arms and looked into her eyes. "What a wonderful thing it is that what happened to me took place at my feet, she answered. "It is more beautiful than ever," he said. "Those marks have doubled my love for you. They are medals of honor better than this one that I wear. I want to marry you as soon as possible. I've been looking forward to that since I was sixteen."

"Then I think I'll take you and marry you before you have a chance to fight another duel."

"I don't hear anything but love and marriage," said Samson. "We've been running down at our own pace. Keep Joseph from running off and getting married. He's engaged already."

"Engaged! To whom?" Harry asked.

"To Annie Brimstead. She's a little older than he is. She laughed at him and promised to marry him as soon as he was handsome enough to marry her. She would now vote for him herself. He has become a good athlete and the best scholar in school. He has every boy and girl in the village working for him evenings and Saturdays."

"What are they doing?" Harry asked.

"Making those overwrought things they call loggers. You can build a fire in a second with 'em. They cut splinters out of soft wood, dip their ends in brimstone—which Joe learned how to make—and put them in a hot oven until the brimstone is baked. Then a splinter will bring a flame. Joe puts them up in bundles and sells them to the merchants and calls them Lucifer matches. He has invented a machine that will cut and dip a thousand splinters an hour. I tell you, Joseph is in danger."

He took a lucifer out of his pocket and scratched it on the bottom of his boot. The party looked with wonder at his fame which quickly consumed the slender thread of pine in his fingers.

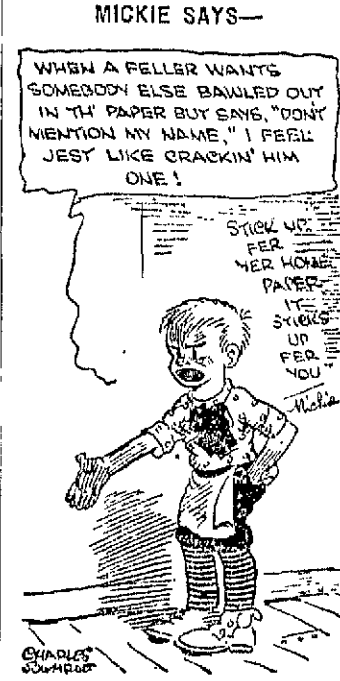

"I have always thought that Joe would make a whale of a man," said Harry.

"We all seem to be three-eyed with immediate and overwhelming happiness," Elm exclaimed.

"The only thing in the way of mine is the national debt that I have accumulated," Harry remarked.

"I knew I'd think of something," said Elm proudly. "If I wanted to abolish the noble institution of marriage I'd make him chairman of the ways and means committee."

"Harry, your credit is still good with me, and I'm prosperous," Samson began. "I want you to know that Elm's energy and skill are mostly responsible for my success. I guess we owe more to your selfishness than you're aware of. If it hadn't been for that we would be piddling along at the same old pace. We would not have felt the need of spending us. It was your misfortune that brought Elm into the store. If she wants to retire and marry him, I rather think she is entitled to do it. I don't want any more feeling around about Elm's matter. Sarah and I couldn't stand it. She's kept me awake nights talking about it. The thing has worried us plenty. We rebel and demand action before anything else happens. We feel as if we had some rights in this case."

"I concede them and second your demand," Harry answered. "This morning a new day. I only need a week to get some clothes and go up to Milwaukee on a little matter of business."

"I don't know whether we'll give him a week or not," said Elm playfully. "A great many things may happen to him in a week."

[To Be Continued]

His Time Was Not Up Yet. A man of irreverent spirit had a son whom he kept well under parental charges, allowing him few liberties and making him work hard.

It was with a feeling of considerable satisfaction that the young man rose on the morning of his twenty-first birthday and began to collect his belongings preparatory to starting out in the world.

The father, seeing his son packing his trunk, which he rightly judged to be the evidence of the early loss of a good farm hand, stopped at the door of the young man's room and asked what he was going to do.

The boy very promptly reminded his father of the day of his coming to the year and declared his intention of striking out into the world on his own account.

"Not much you won't!" showed the old man. "At least not for a while yet! You weren't born until after 12 o'clock, so you can just take off them good clothes and give me another half day's work down in the potato patch." —Harper's Magazine.

It Was a Good One. It was our custom in English class at school to choose a certain person to read his theme aloud before the class, writes a correspondent. On this particular day the girl who sat across the table from me had for her theme a paper before class started. It was a good one, so when the teacher asked whose theme we would like to hear, I promptly suggested that the girl across from me read hers. She arose, but instead of reading the one I had seen, she took another one from her book. It was a wonderful one due to the president of the senior class, praising him to the skies and throwing occasional bouquets at him. I was the president.

Connellsville, Pa., June 11, 1921.

To My Patrons and Friends:—

This is to announce that I have sold my insurance agency to Kelly & Cook who will continue the agency in the same offices, 308 First National Bank Building, heretofore occupied by me. Kelly & Cook maintain insurance offices in Scottsdale and Uniontown. They have a large organization including specialists in the various lines of insurance and have one of the large and important insurance agencies of the state. Mr. J. R. Laughlin, who has been identified with the Kelly & Cook Agency for a long time, and has had large experience in the insurance business, will reside in Connellsville and with myself be in charge of the offices here, assisted by the whole organization of the agency at large. I know of no organization better equipped, nor with better reputation, for service than the Kelly & Cook Agency, and it affords me much pleasure to be able to place the business of my agency in such hands.

Permit me to thank you for your friendship and patronage and to bespeak for the agency the same consideration and support in the future it has received in the past.

Yours truly, W. A. O'BRIEN

EARTH'S SURFACE IN UNREST

Scientists Have Proved That It Is Never at Any Time Without Some Movement.

No portion of the earth's surface is ever at rest, though all but the great movements of earthquakes escaped attention until recent years. The minute vibrations are followed by J. J. Shaw in Nature as an unending train of waves, waxing and waning in amplitude, that are unceasingly coming along the earth's crust and reach to unknown depths. The wave period ranges between 1 and 8 seconds; the amplitude is between one 50,000th and one 2,000th of an inch, but with a wavelength of 8 to 16 miles. The speed of the waves is believed to be about 2000 feet per second. Such local causes as air tremors and the swaying of buildings and trees were formerly supposed, but it is now known that they are wide-spreading earth movements. Earthquakes are easily followed on the recording apparatus by the primary and secondary phases and the long waves rising to a maximum. The minor movements—microseisms—are not easily separated from one another, and there has been no means of studying their propagation. But recently certain tremors have been traced on recording instruments 60 feet apart. Confirming the investigation, the range has been extended to two miles, and it has been made practicable to pick out individual tremors on the two sets of records. One result is the showing that the travel of the microseisms is independent of wind and weather, though the source and cause of the movements are still a mystery.

IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT WILLITE AS PAVING MATERIAL

Written by W. A. Scott, Chief
Road Engineer of California.

UNDER HEAVIEST TRAFFIC

Interesting data on willite paving, such as is to be used in Crawford avenue and Apple arch streets, Conneltsville, by the Bituminous Paving & Resurfacing company of Pittsburgh, of which P. J. Ridge of that city is the head, is given in the Highway Engineer and Contractor, July issue, by W. A. Scott, chief engineer of the state highway system of California.

The material then published related especially to a paved section of Harbor boulevard in the city of Los Angeles, locally known as Nigger slough. This was one of the first paving jobs put through in Los Angeles county for which willite was specified. After having been subjected to heavy motor-traffic and passenger automobile traffic for more than two years there appears no evidence of deterioration at this date. That, at least, was my impression on making a brief inspection of that pavement in April this year. The Nigger slough pavement is about one mile in length but was laid in three sections, crossing two sloughs and one narrow swamp. It consists of two-course willite, five inches thick, laid upon a sand-and-loam fill six feet deep. The sand dunes in that locality were drawn upon, not only as material for making the fill, but for sand required in making the paving mixture.

The manner in which this type of pavement is meeting the severe tests of traffic on Harbor boulevard undoubtedly has won for it a recognition that is assuring its adoption on other highways. It is observed that calls for bids usually include this type among those for which proposals will be considered. The illustrations given with the article show willite paving operations within the last year in the city and county of Los Angeles. One of the illustrations, however, shows a section of the Ridge route, between Los Angeles and Bakersfield, built by the state highway department, on which a willite top was laid upon a previously-built concrete pavement willite paving on that route was laid in two sections. The first consisted of one mile of wearing surface, one and one-half inches thick and 17 feet wide put down four years ago. The second, built in 1930, comprised 2.75 miles, 20 feet wide, and consisted of a willite one and one-half inch top upon a worn concrete base. On this work the mineral aggregate used consisted of sand and one-fourth inch gravel obtained in that locality, together with some powdered limestone as a filler. The Ridge route, being a part of the state highway between San Francisco and Los Angeles, is a much-used thoroughfare on which service test is severe.

Los Angeles county and city highway and street improvements performed within the last six months include considerable willite paving. Several of the pictures illustrate those recent operations. Most of this was two-course paving, four inches thick, laid upon a subgrade of natural sand-loam soil. On one section, however, the pavement extended across a hill. Portions of the county work connected with the pavements of Maywood in which 4,000 square feet of three-inch willite was laid last winter. For this work the mixing plant was set up at sand deposits in that locality. Spots of adobe here and there made it necessary to lay a sand and gravel subgrade.

A willite paving plant consists of equipment assembled especially for that class of work. In most cases the plants are portable and are moved from one job to another. But when a plant is so situated that it may serve more or less continuously in a given locality, it may become a stationary installation, and from such plant the hot mixture may be delivered on paving jobs within a radius of 15 to 20 miles.

The following description of a stationary plant in Los Angeles will be of interest. The equipment comprises a sand heater, elevators, screens, the asphalt-heating kettle, pug mill, weighing boxes and mixer. The mineral aggregate is delivered to a hopper from which it passes to an elevator; by the latter it is fed into a cylindrical drier set in an inclined position. The drier is 18 to 20 feet in length, of an average diameter of about four feet, being larger at the feed end than at the discharge end. Its interior is provided with angle iron that run longitudinally, and the drum is revolved at a speed of 10 to 20 r. m. The material, as it passes through is heated to a temperature of about 350 degrees, F., in three 12 by 20-foot kettles to which heat is supplied by steam coils. The hot asphalt is pumped from kettles to a batch bucket from which it is poured into the mixer at the same time the heated sand is fed into it. The willite batch contains from 75 to 10 per cent asphalt, but about 25 per cent of the asphalt charge is sulphate of copper. The effect of the latter ingredient is to toughen the asphalt binder in the paving mixture. Its effect is to have, even without making it brittle. The mixer charge is poured into a dump truck, at a temperature of 300 de-gress, P., and delivered to the subgrade upon which it is spread with shovels, and rakes. A dump truck may carry as high as 11 batches.

Willite pavements are laid in two courses, an eight-ton tandem roller being applied to each course. That is, a four-inch pavement, for instance, consists of a two and one-half inch base course and one and one-half inch top. The composition of the two are usually the same.

Of the 90 per cent or more of mineral aggregate that enters into the mix, the practice is to have eight to 12 per cent that will run 200 mesh fine, a portion of which is marble dust.—Advertisement.
